YOUR TALENT PARTNERS FOR TRANSFORMATIVE IMPACT

ABOUT US

Founded in 2001, Center for Cultural Innovation is a national nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization headquartered in Los Angeles, California. Grounded in its mission to support culture-bearers, creative entrepreneurs, and other individuals in the arts, CCI works – often with and through cross-sectional networks – to incubate new paradigms of cultural, economic, and political empowerment that can enable financial sustainability and financial self-determination for all.

CCI's core program areas are:

- Knowledge Building & Networking, wherein we regularly produce workshops and convenings to share knowledge and foster connections among our stakeholders of artists, funders, allies, and investees.
- Strategic Investments, which include our grantmaking portfolio of funding opportunities for individual artists and arts workers, as well as our national time-limited initiative, AmbitioUS, which supports the development of alternative economic systems that center culture and community.
- Research, Advocacy, & Incubation, which is realized through our Research to Impact Lab, an initiative that advances reimagined worker and social protections for all.

Further information about CCI's history and ongoing work can be found at cciarts.org, and information about our AmbitioUS and Research to Impact Lab initiatives can be found at ambitio-us.org and r2i-lab.org, respectively.

OVERVIEW AND ROLE DESIGN

The Program Officer, Grants is responsible for managing the full cycle of CCI's grantmaking portfolio for individual artists and arts workers, ensuring that each deadline-based program runs smoothly and on time. We are excited to expand CCI's core capacity through this opportunity that directly supports individual artists, culture bearers, and creative entrepreneurs. Utilizing a combination of technology platforms and established processes, this role will manage all operational details related to a program's grant guidelines, application, diligence, reviewer management, reporting, and related data management. Additionally, as an ambassador who represents CCI publicly in the field, the Program Officer will be responsible for fostering and maintaining positive relationships with multiple stakeholder groups that include applicants, grantees, panelists, as well as funders. This leader requires initial experience and ongoing interest to be engaged in fundraising efforts. Alongside other CCI colleagues, all team members have the commitment to grow and expand their respective portfolios. Specific responsibilities include:

Grants Portfolio Management

- Manages all stages of CCI's grantmaking portfolio's recurring opportunities, which includes crafting and updating ephemera, building applications and report forms, and hosting information and drop-in sessions. - Problem-solves by troubleshooting programmatic challenges and recommends solutions and collaborates with the grants team members to continuously improve and streamline grants-related processes.

Communication and External Stakeholder Relationship Management

- Cultivates new funder relationships to widen CCI's network and visibility in the field and generate opportunities for collaboration and partnership.

Strategic Planning, Evaluation, and Reporting

- Plans and collaborates with Deputy Director for annual and strategic planning to keep programs and grantmaking practices fresh and resonant; works with the team to set annual grants calendar.
- Responsible for ensuring that all programs collect consistent data to drive success and use metrics for future program support.
- Supports data management via Salesforce by adhering to data protocols and data entry procedures and maintaining accurate applicant and grantee data for periodic analysis and reporting.
- Supports crafting content and generating data needed for proposals and reporting to various stakeholders, including institutional funders and for CCI's Annual Report.

The Program Officer will report directly to the Deputy Director and will work in collaboration with the Grants team which includes another Program Officer and the Systems & Grants Manager. The Program Officer will also support other areas of CCI's programs as needs arise. CCI has two physical office locations in Los Angeles and San Francisco, but operates permanently as a remote-work workplace, with on-site presence on an as-needed basis. A substantial portion of the grant portfolio that this role will manage is geographically specific to California, as is the current and potential funder base for this portfolio. As such, this specific role is physically based in the San Francisco Bay Area, with an expectation to attend local in-person meetings as needed. Occasional travel to participate in conferences and attend key meetings is expected. At times, unconventional and irregular work hours may be expected as well.

OUR CULTURE

People with these values, qualities, and experiences have thrived at CCI:

- Humility in learning. CCI is a place of deep listening and unlearning; conventionally trained expertise is less valued than having an informed, critical perspective grounded in realistic constraints and foresight for what could be fantastically possible.

- Thrives in environments where empowerment, agency, and accountability are valued.

- Pattern recognizer, systems thinker, or ability to think several steps ahead.
- Curiosity for the unknown; playfulness in the gray areas of structural rules and systems, and passionate about CCI's mission.
- Excitement to support the realization of CCI's entrepreneurial vision for this line of work.
- Ability to manage up, down, and across within the organization and amongst various types of funding, movement, nonprofit, and political partners.
- Deep understanding that the journey can be just as, if not, more important than the outcome itself.
